Can multiple event producers use our account if our organization is the beneficiary of their event?

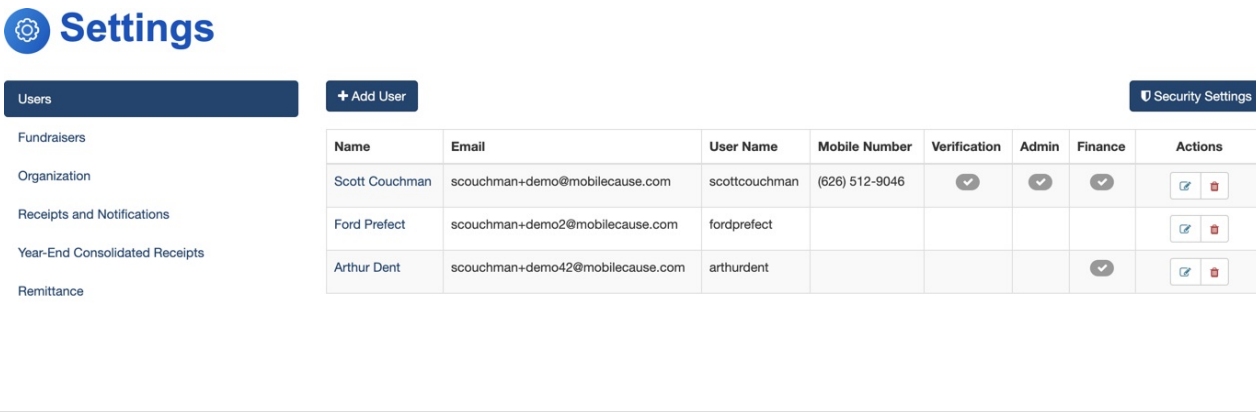
We often have clients with multiple events per year, produced by different parties, but all benefiting the same nonprofit organization. We hope you use your GiveSmart Fundraise account for as many fundraising opportunities as possible!

Option 1: You can set up a keyword for your event producer and simply give them the link to display your Fundraising Thermometer at their event. This way, they can use the thermometer but don't have full access to your information.


Option 2: You can set up your event producer as a User in your account. Be aware that anyone with access to your account will have the ability to see all of your donor data and transaction history. If you have any concerns about that level of access, select Option 1.
